along with

SPACOMM 2018, The Tenth International Conference on Advances in Satellite and Space Communications

April 22, 2018 to April 26, 2018 - Athens, Greece

<http://www.iaria.org/conferences2018/SPACOMM18.html>

5G is expected to provide a paradigm shift in wireless networking. It will support throughput, latency, capacity and scalability requirements of extreme bandwidth augmented reality applications and connectivity management of billions of Machine-to-Machine (M2M) devices. The 5G systems will provide efficient radio access, spectrum re-use, cost effective security, all IP networks and multi gigabit connectivity with excellent QOS. In addition, they will address the capacity needed to for explosive growth. It will usher innovation to create wireless revolution.

Prospective authors are invited to submit original papers (both simulated and design/built) on topics including, but not limited to:

- Network visualization, efficiency, speed, reliability, capacity, and QOS
- Self- backhauling, Het, software defined networks
- Role of satellites
- NOMA, Coding and modulation
- Bandwidth and resource allocation
- On-chip network
- Mobile base station
- Adaptive radio
- 5G for talking cars
- Remote high speed computing
- Machine learning
- M2M Device centric architecture
- Millimeter Wave Technology (e.g., Tx/Rx, filter, up/down conversion etc)
- Bearable devices
- IoT and Smart cities
- MMW beam former
