along with eTELEMED 2020, The Twelfth International Conference on eHealth, Telemedicine, and Social Medicine

November 21 - 25, 2020 - Valencia, Spain

Digital transformation and the efforts to work paperless call for support of concepts and tools related to identification and authentication agents and content in various health, pharmaceutical, and regulatory environments, as well as for ensuring and protecting the authenticity of the content.

ICT systems in the health arena should be assisted by different technologies related to electronic signature, blockchain, and other identification, authentication, and authenticity-corroboration mechanisms. Common building blocks and various legislation and standards should lay the ground for implementation of these mechanisms in the health domain (as well as in any domain).

The main objective of this track is to showcase different approaches and implementations of these mechanisms, to bring together experience gathered in various countries, to promote the portability of existing solutions, and to produce widely-acceptable recommendations related to the stated identification, authentication, and validity issues

Topics expected, but not limited to:

- Methods of identification and authentication used in eHealth, Pharma and Regulatory environments
- Authenticity-related mechanisms used in eHealth, Pharma and Regulatory environments
- Paperless eHealth, Pharma, and Regulatory systems and digital transformation
- Qualified electronic signature
- Blockchain and distributed ledger technology
- Regulations (eIDAS, UETA, E-SIGN Act, eSign Law of the PRC, PIPEDA, ITA, other legislation worldwide)
- Standards (ISO/TC 307, PAdES, CAdES, XAdES, other related standards)

- Available building blocks
- Legal practice and problems
- Interoperability of various health systems, related to implemented mechanisms of authentication and authenticity
- Portability and transfer of electronically signed health and regulatory records
- Sustainability and long-term preservation of electronically-signed medical and regulatory records
