We cordially invite you to participate in the Special Track DIGISKILL at our upcoming DIGITAL conference, which focuses on the emergent areas of Digital Skills for Societal Digital Transformation. The Special Track provides an ideal platform to present and discuss insights, innovations, and cutting-edge research in the field of digital skills of the 21st century in a workshop atmosphere. By reviewing good practices across the world, the track presents different approaches in digital transformation to developing training activities as well as means for informal learning. It also provides insights into how relevant skills can be assessed, and how skills development implementations can be evaluated.

This track has an objective to lay the groundwork for the requirements that a vast majority of citizens are not only equipped with basic 21st century skills, but also trained with digital government user skills in the long run. Digital skills development for an inclusive digital government relates to the topics on public-value creation, citizen engagement and active citizenship, digital democracy and people-centric innovations in the age of smart governments. We encourage you to submit both long and short papers and idea papers. In addition, we look forward to demos and posters on current solutions being developed in academia or collaborations with industry.

Examples of subtopics for contributions include, but are not limited to:

• Digital Literacy and Core Digital Skills
• Digital Skills to Address Digital Divide: Accessibility and Affordability
• Upskilling & Reskilling the Future of Work
• Adapting to AI-Augmented Workspaces
• Ethical Use of Digital Tools and Platforms
• Digital Skills for Digital Citizenship

• Role of Digital Competencies in Smart Cities
• Creating a Digital Growth Mindset
• Digital Activism
• Digital Skills of Public Employees
• Digital Competency Maturity: Public vs. Private Sector
• Digital Skills and Value Creation
• Assessment Methods for Digital Skills
• Digital Competency Frameworks

These are only suggestions; we welcome papers discussing other issues related to digital accessibility
